The yard was overrun with junk: an empty blue barrel, a small sculpture of a lighthouse, a green plastic cactus. The most prominent item was a wood-paneled hot tub with one side caved in. There was a car in the driveway; I parked behind it and walked up to the front door. A sign on it read, "This is a no smoking house."

So I now get 22.50 per barrel. But due to pipeline capacity and other factors related to the Argus numbers I may need to subtract an additional $3. A couple years ago when things were really bad, I was subtracting $17. So we are now sitting at $19.50 per barrel. But we have to pay our oil purchaser to take the oil which ranges $2.50-4 typically.
